Agent Bank Reclaim Processes

Issuer Services

In many jurisdictions, either due to local regulations or the desire to provide superior customer service, withholding tax reclaims may be filed through agent banks instead of the local tax authority. Filing through a local agent bank can provide an additional level of quality control, as agent banks have a vested interest in providing the highest possible level of service to their clients. A local agent can also often liaise more effectively with the appropriate tax authority than a non-resident applicant.
